CATALOGUE.

MINIATURE OF ALEX. HAMILTON.

1 Ivory Miniature of Gen. Alexander Hamilton, Military Secretary to Gen. Washington, probably painted by Edward G. Malbone. In gold miniature frame, with lock of his hair in the back.

This exquisitely painted portrait on ivory was probably painted by Edward G. Malbone. It exhibits Hamilton as a young man of presumably 21 or 22 years of age, and was evidently painted for a member of his family, as it has his hair in the back. It belonged formerly to the late famous War Governor of Georgia, Hon. Joseph E. Brown, who valued it very highly. After his death it was purchased by Mr. Toole, from a member of the family. The portrait is unsigned, but the workmanship exhibits the delicate touch and drawing of the celebrated artist to whom I attribute it.

OIL PORTRAIT OF WASHINGTON, BY REMBRANDT PEALE.

2 Washington, General George. Life-size Bust Portrait, painted by Rembrandt Peale. A Study of his famous "Port Hole" Portrait. Size 28 in. x 23 in.

This is a very interesting study of Peale's life work.

12mo, full limp roan. Philadelphia, 1840
This is accompanied by Thomas Chancellor's affidavit, stating this to be the bible that fell from the pocket of Gen. T. J. (Stonewall) Jackson when his coat was removed to enable the surgeons to better attend to his wounds. This incident occurred in his grandfather's house, in Chancellorsville, where the general was brought dangerously wounded.

I can personally assert that this is not the bible owned by Jackson, and from knowledge in my possession I can fully substantiate this bible to be one of the numerous frauds perpetrated, upon many collectors, by an unworthy son of a Virginia father.
